

OUT & ABOUT AFRICA

Home About Links Legalese

4.8.11

Art Scene: The Wanly Brothers

~ Untitled by Adham Wanly ~

twitter

flickr

pinterest

subscribe

Search

Label

Art Design
Fashion music
Photography

Archive

August 2011 (23) ▾

~ Nocturne by Seif Wanly ~

~ The Kiss by Adham Wanly ~

~ Unknown (to me) by Seif Wanly ~

Can I just tell you how much I love Thursday's posts?!?!? It always starts off a little bumpy with me digging around the internet (not a small hole to be digging around in) trying to find works of art that really speak to me. Once I find something that I love, the next part involves a whole lot of hoping and praying and crossing of fingers and toes that the world wide web actually has photos of the artists' work in a size and quality worthy enough to share with you. When all the forces are aligned, there is usually a moment of happy wiggling that goes on because I get so excited about what I'm going to share!

The Egyptian Wanly brothers, Adham and Seif, works are amazing not only because they are aesthetically pleasing, but because I feel suddenly awakened to a whole scene of modern art slowly coming into Egypt and being interpreted by Egyptian artists using scenes from their own environment.

(Photos: Mutual Art, Artnet, Chosun)

Posted by Brandie at 10:49 AM

 +1 Recommend this on Google

Labels: Art

1 comment:

kelly jo said...

wow, the kiss is really, really beautiful!